

Hi family & friends!
I know what you're asking yourselves:
"selves: what did we do to deserve a comic-form letter from someone who, ostensibly, loves or at least doesn't actively-dislike us?!"

"Surely none of our crimes this year have earned us such a harsh meting out
of brutal justice?"

(Will not even the children
be spared by this unplanned abomination?? This hand-scrawled murder of language?
This massacre of the sequential art form?
This improvisational form
of holiday greeting TORMENT!?!)

May, dear relation: may.
For none are safe from the dreaded:

Christmas LETTER!

"So, what's been going on in this guy's life & why is he writing a Christmas Letter™ for the first time in 20ish years?" you might ask.

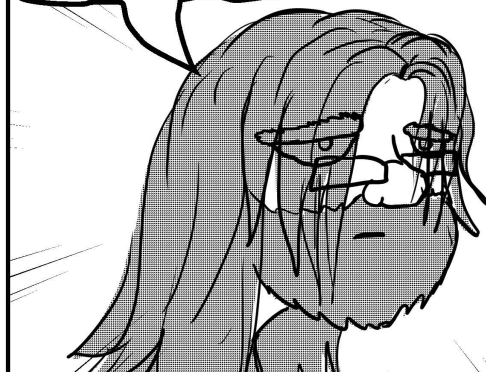

Well, as you shall soon understand:
Not a whole lot.

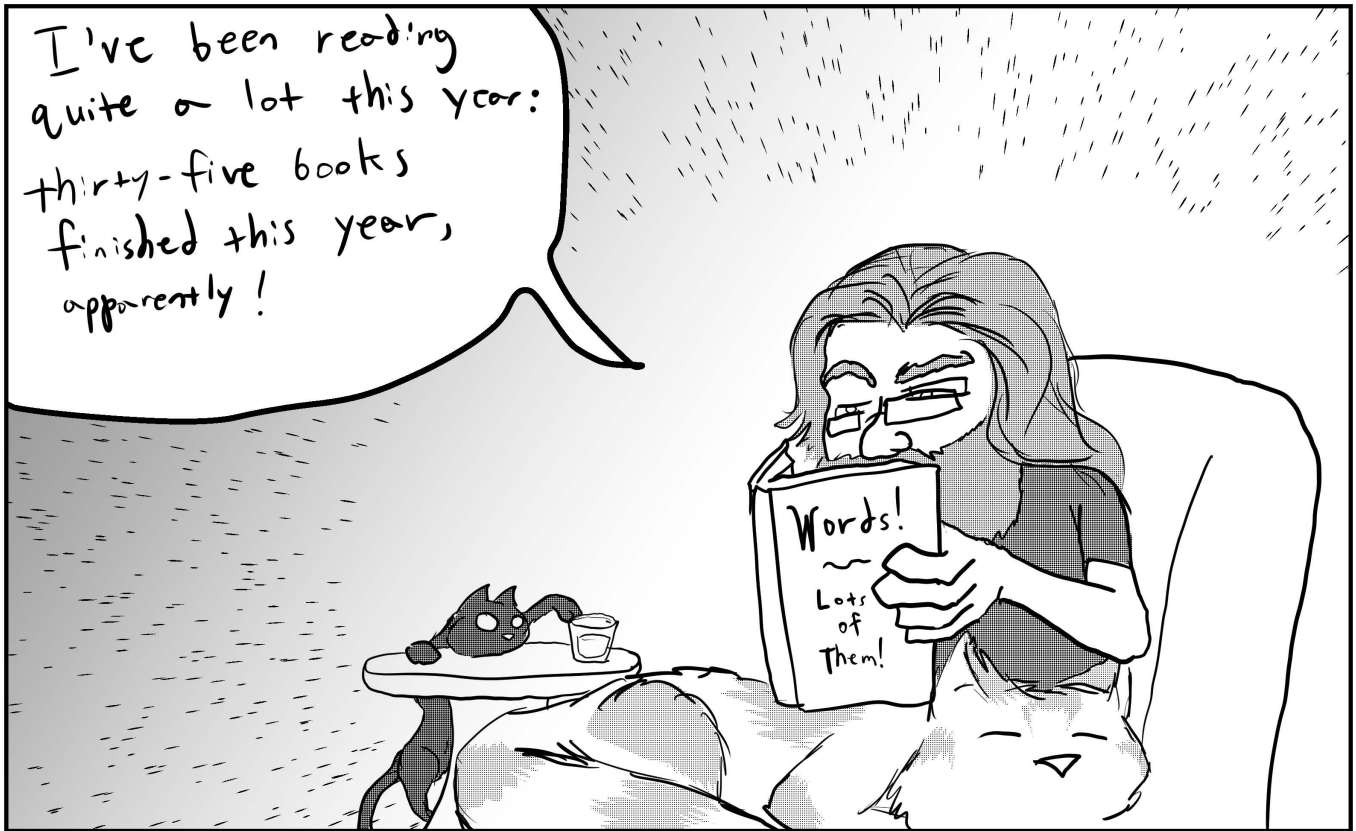

Obviously I'm still growing my hair out to donate it to "Wigs For Kids."

It used to really annoy some folks at work, but now they're used to it, which takes a lot of the fun out of it, if I'm being honest.

We're down to three ex-ferals living in my garage. Plus an occasional raccoon, who seems to get along with them, somehow.

I feed & water them each morning.

Rambo. Likes:
• Killing.
• Being Swole.
• Belly Rubs

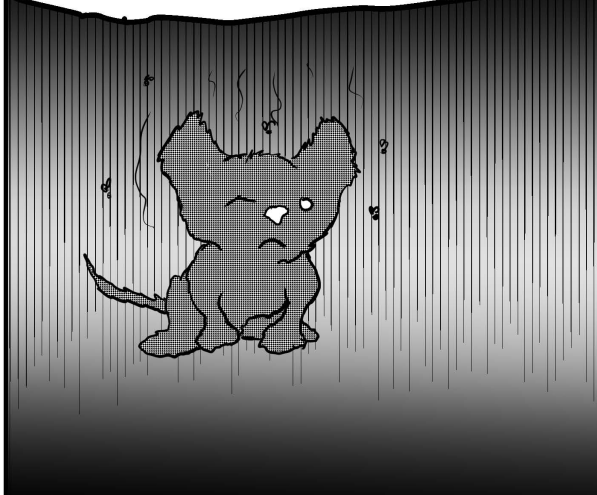

Buddy. Likes:
• Head Rubs
• Heat Pads
• Doors

Skitty Kitty. Likes:
• staying in the garage
• Being afraid
• Head scratches

Indoors, Simon & Grumbles exist. They do not get along.

If you don't know; Grumbles turned up on my porch at 5 weeks old, mostly dead. He wasn't in my, or more importantly, Simon's plan.

Work is fine. I got bored with AV & applied for a tech gig. I got it, so now I'm studying for a computer security certificate.

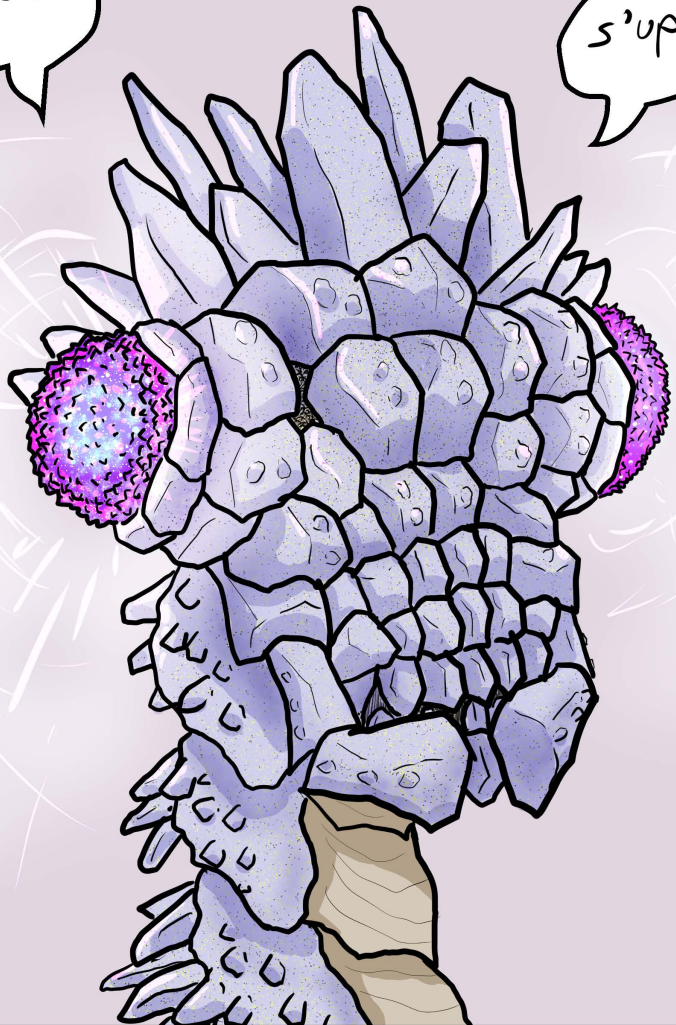

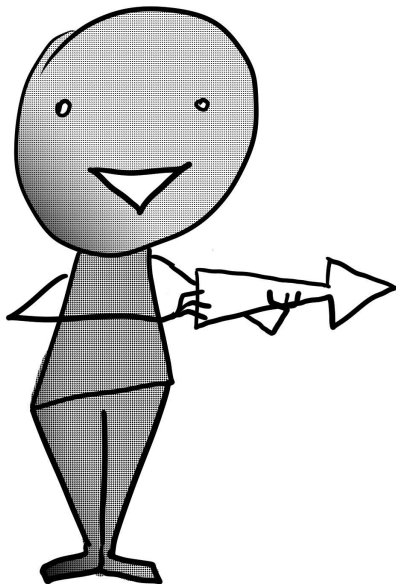

If it's possible for a subject to be more oppressively-dull, man has yet to find it.

I'm still working on my art!
Here's a doodle I finished yesterday.

...

s'up?

I reckon that's all I've to say! "No news is good news," & all that. I hope all's well for you folks!

Here's what I look like, if my masterwork of illustration is somehow insufficient!

Heck yea

Mrrrow!

Cool
